

The Daily Courant.

Wednesday, October 8. 1707.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated Oct. 14.
Tariffa; Sept. 18.

THE 13th Instant about 30 English Ships, most of them Men of War, came out of the Straits into the Ocean: In their Passage they put some Sick Men and Provisions ashore at Gibraltar. They are now at Anchor before Cadix.

Madrid, Sept. 27. The 25th Instant the Queen appear'd in Publick the first Time, and heard Mass in the Royal Chappel. 'Tis advis'd from the Camp near Ciudad Rodrigo, that the Marquis de Bay having secur'd all the Passes about that City, detach'd Lieutenant General Don Joseph Armendariz to do the like about Almeida; which Lieutenant General has taken some Mules that were carrying Ammunition and Provisions thither, and dispers'd their Guard. It has been given out for several Days, that the Siege of Lerida is carry'd on successfully; but to Day an Express from the Duke of Orleans brought an Account, that the Trenches are not yet open'd against it, because the River Segra had been so swell'd by Rain, that it has overflow'd its Banks and cover'd the adjoining Grounds; So that the Trenches could not be open'd till the End of this Month. Our Bridge of Boats over that River, had been twice broke by the Violence of the Stream, and some of the Boats were lost; but Men were set to Work to put it together again with all Expedition. Most of the heavy Cannon that are to be us'd to make Breaches, remain'd still between Candafnos and Fraga on this side of the Cinca; and 600 Horses were sent to draw them through the deep Roads. In the mean while the Enemy draw all their Forces together near Cervera, 9 Miles from Lerida. The King at the Desire of the Duke of Orleans, has sent a Courier to the Marquis de Bay, to order him to detach with all speed 6 Regiments of Horse from Estramadura to Catalonia. The Chevalier d'Hasfeldt has besieg'd Morella on the Frontier of Valencia; but 'tis thought that Siege will be chang'd into a Blockade, because (as 'tis said) Orders are likewise sent to him to march with his Body of 12 Battalions and 14 Squadrons to the Camp before Lerida; which Place will be endeavour'd to be taken, cost what it will, that our Troops may Winter commodiously on the Frontier of Catalonia. Yesterday came Advice, that Part of the Confederate Fleet was come out of the Mediterranean and was in sight of Cadix; 'tis suppos'd they will proceed to Lisbon.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Oct. 11.

From the Camp at Pignerol, Sept. 24. The 21st the Duke of Savoy advanc'd with a Detachment before la Perouse, and is there still. His Royal Highness has receiv'd 2 Expresses from Prince Eugene, with the News that he had possess'd himself of the Eminencies about Suza, and of the Fort of Brunette, and that the 5 French Battalions which guarded them, retir'd to Exiles, leaving but a weak Garrison in the Castle of Suza, of which he hop'd to be Master in a few Days.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Octob. 14.

Turin, Sept. 18. The 26th Instant his Royal Highness arriv'd here, with General Visconti: He has left the Command of the Troops that are between Pignerol, Peroute, and Fort St. Martin, to the Hereditary Prince of Hesse-Cassel. 'Tis thought, that if the Weather holds fair his Royal Highness will quickly go back to the Army. Prince Eugene having begun to batter the Castle of Suza, we hope to hear speedily of its being taken. In the Town of Suza and the Forts of Brunette and Catinat, were found about 3000 Sacks of Meal, 1000 Sacks of Barley, and 1300 Loads of Hay. The Corps of the Count de Verue, who was kill'd before Fort Murin, was brought thither the 25th.

Milan, Octob. 1. We have receiv'd Advice, that the Duke of Savoy having had a Conference with Prince Eugene in the Camp before Suza, is since come to Turin. The Marshal de Tesse has caus'd a strong Body of Troops to march towards Chaumont, in Order to attempt, if possible, to succour Suza: But Prince Eugene has taken the necessary Precautions to oppose him.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated Octob. 14.

Grenoble, Oct. 2. The Marshal de Tesse has drawn together above Briangon a Body of 15 or 16000 Men, waits for 12 Regiments from Provence, and seems resolv'd to undertake to relieve the Castle of Suza, before which the Enemy had not open'd Trenches the 30th past. Forrage is very scarce in this Part of the Country, which will be some Hindrance to the Marshal de Tesse in his Designs; but we are to get together what we can far and wide, and to send it to Briangon by Mules. M. de Chamarante who commands in the Castle of Suza, gives Hope that he shall be able to defend it till the End of this Month; but many are of Opinion, that if he be not timely succour'd he cannot hold out to the 15th.

Toulon, Sept. 30. All the Troops are on the March out of this Province to Dauphine, because Prince Eugene who 'twas thought would have sent his Troops into Winter Quarters, has besieg'd in Form the Castle of Suza, and 'tis fear'd after the taking it will endeavour to make an Irruption into France from that Quarter.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Octob. 14.

Some Advices from the Frontiers of Savoy of the 4th of this Month, tell us the Castle of Suza and la Perouse have surrendred: And add, that the Parties of the Germans have already penetrated into the Morienne. They write from Lions the 2d Instant, that the King of France having order'd Captain Beauclair to send him an Account of the Number of Deserters that came over from the Allies while their Army was in Provence, because the Captain had been directed to give a Crown to each; he return'd Answer that the Number of them was between 1250 and 1300; and 'twas reported the Intendant of the Marine had confirm'd the same thing, which is very different from what we were told by the Paris Gazette, viz. that the Number of those Deserters amounted to above 10000.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Oct. 11.

Amsterdam, Oct. 10. Letters from Genoa of the 24th of September tell us, that as the Post was going away, a Bark arriv'd there in 5 Days from Barcelona, the Master of which being a Native of Catalonia reported, that the Earl of Galway had attack'd the French Army before Lerida, kill'd 3000 Men on the Spot, taken some, and put the rest to Flight.

From the Paris Gazette, dated October 8.

From the Camp at Rastad, Sept. 26. The Marquis de Vivans being detach'd from the Army with 15 Squadrons, to cover the lower Part of the Valley of Kintzig, posted himself near the Imperial Town of Offenbourg. The Enemy who were soon inform'd of it, sent General Mercy and Count Lobkowitz the 15th Instant, with about 2000 Horse, to endeavour to fight him. They made a march of 25 Leagues on the other side of the Mountains, and attack'd him by the Favour of a very thick Fog. This unforeseen Attack put the Detachment into some Disorder: However, the Count de Choiseul with with his Regiment having Time to mount, charg'd the Enemy with so great Vigour, that he broke them twice, and by that means gave the Troops Opportunity to retire and rally. But the Enemy contenting themselves with the Advantage they had at first, return'd with as much Expedition as they came. They had at least as many Men kill'd as the King's Troops, of whom no more than 250 Men were kill'd wounded or taken Prisoners, among which there is no Person of Figure. The Armies continue in the same Camps; but the Enemy begin to want Forrage: They wait for 2 or 3 Regiments, and the Duke of Hanover's Guards of 200 Horse. They write from Ratisbon, that the Margrave of Baden had written a Letter to the Diet, in which he expresses great Resentment for the Affront put upon him, in taking from him the Command of the Army of the Empire without any Cause. He has likewise made Complaints about it to his Kinsman the Elector of Brandenburg, and to other Princes. The Margrave of Baden Dourlach has caus'd a Memorial to be deliver'd to the Diet, in which he represents that he has all along furnish'd his Contingent, though his Dominions have since the beginning of the War been expos'd to the marches of the Troops of the Empire; but that at present his Territories are intirely eaten up and ruin'd by the Encampments of the Armies both of Friends and Enemies; so that he had been oblig'd to retire to Basil with his numerous Family: Whereupon he desires not only to be excus'd from his Contingent which he can pay no longer, but that the Empire will in some Measure make good his Losses.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Oct. 11.

From the Imperial Camp, near Eblingen, Oct. 3. The 1st Count Mercei joynd us with his Detachment, and the Booty he had taken, which is divided among his Troops. The Enemy themselves own, that M. de Vivans had above 500 Men kill'd, and about 400 wounded; and that some of their best Regiments are almost ruin'd. The Enemy's Army being post'd in so advantageous a Camp that they cannot be attack'd, or forc'd to repass the Rhine, and they being much superiour to us in Horse, 'tis judg'd that no more can be done than to make a Line from the Valley of Gersbach to the Rhine near Raftad, to cover the Country and our Winter Quarters, and the Elector of Hanover has set several thousand Pioneers and Soldiers to work on that Line accordingly.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Oct. 14.

Frankfort, Oct. 9. The Elector of Hanover continues to keep at Work 7 or 8000 Men a-day, on the Line to cover the Winter-Quarters. Some Redoubts are also order'd to be made in the Passages of the Black Forrest, to restrain the Enemy's Excursions.

Letters from the Camp near Eblingen of the 7th of October, say some Deputies of the Circles were come thither to confer with the Elector of Hanover, about the Repartition of the Winter Quarters and the Establishing of Magazines; and that they had approv'd the Dispositions which his Electoral Highness had made therein. The Troops want nothing, by the good Orders that Prince has given.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated Oct. 14.

Paris, Oct. 10. 'Tis Advis'd from Fontainebleu, that the King has receiv'd an Account from the Duke of Orleans, that the Water of the Segre being fallen considerably, he design'd to open Trenches against Lerida, the 27th or 28th of last Month. They affect to report at Court, that they have no Account of the Siege of the Castle of Suza; which makes us suspect that things go ill on that Side. 'Tis Advis'd from Madrid, that Ciudad Rodrigo is invested. The Court will return from Fontainebleau to Versailles the 25th of this Month. Money is extraordinary scarce here.

From the Paris Gazette, dated Octob. 8.

Paris, Octob. 8. 'Tis advis'd from Best, that the Chevalier de Forbin arriv'd there the 23d of last Month with his Squadron. He brought in with him the 4 best and richest Ships; on board which, and on the Ships he commands, he had caus'd to be laden what was most valuable in the other Prizes took; which to the Number of 30 and above, he either burnt or ransom'd.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Octob. 14.

Dunkirk, Octob. 8. A Fleet of 44 Merchant Ships that sail'd out of the Texel for London, under the Convoy of 2 Men of War, have been dispers'd by a violent Storm of Wind, so that Part of them have been stranded on the Coast of Flanders. Yesterday several arm'd Boats were sent out, who took 8 Ships and brought them into this Port. 3 or 4 are carried into Newport, and 6 into Calais. We have now in Sight more Prizes of that Fleet, and can descry the 2 Men of War their Convoy 5 Leagues out at Sea. 'Tis talk'd, that in the Prizes the Chevalier de Forbin took out of the English and Dutch Fleets bound for Muscovy, were 9 Chests of Money; but that 8 of them were pillag'd by his Seamen.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Oct. 3.

Offend, Oct. 8. Five Ships of the Fleet bound from the Texel for England are brought into Newport; another Ship of that Fleet drove upon a Sand a League and half off this Town; but the Goods being taken out by Boats sent from hence, are put into Warehouses here; tho' they are much damag'd by the Salt Water, the Lading being chiefly Bale-Goods and Paper.
